As part of a McMaster research study, we did surveys with residents in Keith, Stinson and Stipley neighbourhoods. Here are some highlights from Stipley. You can download a full report at www.crunch.mcmaster.ca/projects/hnstudy.

About the study

Our research team at McMaster is doing the Hamilton Neighbourhoods Study to help find out what kind of difference the City of Hamilton’s Neighbourhood Action Strategy is making in your neighbourhood. In 2012, we interviewed residents in Stipley, the neighbourhood surrounding the stadium, stretching from Sherman to Gage and Main to the CN tracks. Participants were selected at random.

We talked to 386 residents aged 18 and over in Stipley.

On average, they had been living in Stipley for 10 years and living in their current dwelling for 8 years. Four in 5 people we talked to (80%) had not moved in the past year.

64% would like to stay in their neighbourhood for years to come.

86% reported that they were either ‘very satisfied’ or ‘satisfied’ with their residence overall, and 73% with the neighbourhood overall.

94% felt safe in the neighbourhood during the day. At night, they felt less safe in the neighbourhood.

94% described the people in their neighbourhood as ‘friendly’ or ‘very friendly.’
Around 1 in 4 people felt that places to buy healthy food, meet people and have a meeting were lacking. Around 2 in 5 people felt that childcare, public libraries and places to be physically active were lacking.

About half felt that services for youth, banks, and family doctors/walk-in clinics were lacking. About 1 in 12 felt that those services were inaccessible.

Most people agreed the neighbourhood has ways of sharing information and opportunities for celebration and fun.

But they weren’t convinced the neighbourhood has ways of working together to solve problems, or that they have influence over what their neighbourhood is like.

GET INVOLVED WITH STIPLY!

Your neighbours have been working on these issues and priorities. If you’d like to find out more or get involved in neighbourhood action in Stipley, contact:

People we surveyed were asked: “What do you think are the TWO most important things that would make your neighbourhood a better place to live? Here’s what we heard most often, with the number of responses in brackets.

1. Address issues related to sex work (59)
2. Drug dealing and use (58)
3. Greater police presence needed (42)
4. Traffic calming measures needed e.g. stop signs and traffic lights (31)
5. Community/recreation centre needed (30)
